TEAM-BUILDING AT ALLIANZ STADIUM

LEARN THE HAKA

LEARN THE HAKA

The Haka is a ceremonial Māori war dance, which is intended to intimidate opposition fighters in battle. The Haka has become synonymous with the game of rugby, as the New Zealand national team, the All Blacks, perform the traditional dance before every match, intimidating opposing rugby teams.

Learning how to perform this traditional dance at Allianz Stadium is perfect as a thrilling team-building exercise, or as a powerful mid-conference energiser, encouraging collaboration amongst your team, as well as teaching valuable lessons about the traditions and rich culture of this historic dance.

We recommend performing the activity in the stadium bowl, beside the world-famous pitch. This is a fantastic way to connect the activity to the Haka's rugby connections, and a great way to impress your team, due to the event spaces awe-inspiring nature.
